Rochester 300

HISTORY OF THE HARTLEY SAW MILL

Hartley Saw Mill began operating in the 1880's under the ownership of James Hartley. Previous to this time a grist mill, and possibly an iron works occupied the site. The early saw mill, relying on water power, produced box boards, shingles, and sawed wood. The business grew and power was converted to steam soon after the turn of the century.

Following World War I and the death of James Hartley, a partnership of H. Ellen, James, Greenwood, Daniel and Henry B. Hartley assumed ownership. In some of the later years the payroll expanded to over forty men. In 1935 alone, 3,500 cords of wood were sold. House and boat lumber, planking, beams, box boards, posts, rails, and spile were also important products. Hardware was sold and custom sawing and planing was a service provided at the mill. A crew of woodchoppers and log cutters was maintained on purchased standing timber or on saw mill woodlots which at one time totaled 2,400 acres.

Production slowed in the 1950's with a complete closing of business in 1964.

pulled out by harbor ice would float free into the bay and be lost. He said that Wharf Commissioner Edward Alves, who now lives in New Bedford, would not be aware of the problem. The Board of Selectmen told Collyer to secure the pilings to prevent their loss.

TOLD TO SEEK VARIANCE

Conrad Roy of Ocean Drive conferred with Selectmen on steps that are required to pour lead keels at a site near his home. Mr. Roy said that some of the equipment was still at the boatyard where the pouring had been done previously and some had been relocated to his home. The Selectmen had earlier sought an opinion by Town Counsel Donald Fleming and read from his letter advising Mr. Roy to proceed by asking for a special permit for a non-conforming business from the Board of Appeals. The Selectmen said that the cease and desist order will remain in force pending that action and decision.

LICENSE CHANGE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Marilyn Sargelis sought a wine and malt license for the Village Package Store on County Road. She stated that this location has been a package store for a number of years and she wished to continue sale of wines and beers at the property that she has purchased.

Robert Wood, proprietor of Romeo's, expressed opposition because he said that he feels that the public is well served with

Wallace Underwood, owner of the Cask & Keg and holder of the license for that establishment last located at the Village Package Store, said that he has a possible buyer now in the process of looking for a site to operate. or any of our other 7 convenient offices

Could you use another deduction on your 1978 Federal Income Tax return?

If you are not presently covered under a pension plan or retirement fund, you are eligible for an IRA at NBIS. This lets you contribute as much as 15% of your earned income each year, up to $1500, into a fund for your own retirement and deduct the entire amount from your total earned income on your Federal tax return. Or, if you have a non-working spouse, you can contribute up to $1750 and take the full deduction.

If you and your spouse open an IRA, your deduction could amount to as much as $3,000 on your joint federal return.

And while your money is in your retirement fund, you pay no state or federal tax on the interest earned.

Which brings us to another very interesting matter—the way your retirement fund keeps building with top NBIS interest rates, compounded continously.

In fact, at $1500 per year for the next 30 years, you'll have over $200,000 for retirement . . . and over 75% of that amount is pure interest!

An IRA gives you a real tax break now . . . and a better financial position later, after you retire.

*Deductions can be taken on your 1978 return provided you open your IRA before April 14, 1979

Rochester 300

The Rochester 300 Committee met with interested members of the community to discuss the calendar for the celebration. Letters were read, most of which were from local and state dignitaries, accepting the invitation to participate in the July 22 Tri-Centennial Parade. The "other" Rochesters have been replying also, and Selectman George Bare related one letter from Rochester, Kentucky, population almost 400, with an example of how they raise taxes - cake sale, and bingo for example!

Chairman Conrad Bernier appointed Harry Brown as treasurer of the Committee, and Mr. Brown requested that all donations to the Rochester 300 Fund be sent directly to the Town Hall, "Rochester 300 Fund", and these gifts will be used to defray expenses for banners, bunting, parade expenses, and other like uses.

The Lions Club will shortly mail out forms to be used by each unit wishing to be in the parade. They will also have a calendar prepared for the public, available soon.

The parade route will be: start on Rounseville Road at Mendall, proceed through the center, on Route 105, to Walnut Plain Road, up Walnut Plain Road to Mary's Pond Road, down Mary's Pond Road to the ball park. Booths of refreshments will be set up in the park, and local organizations are encouraged to set up tables.

The route is being publicized so that residents on the route may be forewarned, and make preparations. We know many will wish to have bunting, flags and special plantings. We encourage these, but ask that good taste be exercised, and plastics avoided. We also encourage residents of the route, and nearby, to consider that their yard might serve as a parking lot for visitors, free or with a small charge. Either is perfectly legal on that one day. Lemonade stands, normally appreciated in summer, will be in demand on a hot parade day.

SCULPTURE OF ANNA POOR AT ART CENTER

The insular world of Southeastern Massachusetts has been invaded by a sculptor with a new vision - Anna Poor. Her work will be on view in the Cecil Clark Davis Gallery of the Marion Art Center, March 9-April 1. Opening is Friday, March 9, 7-9:30 for members and their guests.

The sculpture of Anna Poor is unique in form and concept, and brings a glimpse of what's going on in Conceptual Art circles. The most arresting part of this show is a "forest" of hanging forms (actually stockings filled with sand). Wall-mounted box constructions and ceramics compliment the "environment" of the stocking forms.

Ms. Poor has taught sculpture and ceramics in Cambridge and Provincetown, and has shown her ceramics and environmental pieces in Boston, New York, L.A., and Provincetown. She gained her education at San Francisco Art Institute, Massachusetts College of Art, and Harvard's extension in Cambridge, Mass.

PEE WEE A: On Saturday, February 24th, Rochester's New Design Kitchen bowed to Dartmouth 2-0. On Saturday, March 3rd, Rochester forfeited a tied, penalty-ridden game to Acushnet.

It is the hope of New Design Kitchen's parents and coaches that officials who encourage young boys to brawl on the ice will be eliminated from Suburban Youth Hockey in the very near future.

One String-Two Carrots

Editorial D.C.J.

It is unfortunate that the sole triumph of the Carter Administration was to orchestrate the hugging and kissing session at Camp David between Began and Sadat which led to their premature Nobel Peace Prize. Now President Jimmy Carter appears obsessed with this one shining moment which popped like shimmering soap bubbles as the huggees took off for home. In the meantime, the American people notice that other problems seem to abound. As Jimmy Carter plays matchmaker at Camp David, we are being wrung out by the multinational oil companies and the Arabs with no apparent end in sight. Is it possible that this is the same country that engineered the atom bomb and the hydrogen bomb. Is it possible that this is the same country that built the equipment to take man to the moon. Seemingly, there is little thought of solving the energy lack by a new approach. Energy Czar James Schlesinger seems to be intent on solving the oil shortage by punishing the consumer. Apparently when it becomes too expensive to use oil our problem is over. Or is it? How much of this country's economic health is dependent on the ability to heat buildings? How much is dependent on the ability to move from one spot to the other for business or pleasure? Offhand, I would say a lot. What is the matter with government encouragement of new sources of energy? If every United States home could heat water alone by sun power maybe we could afford to heat the house. Why is not the Carter administration backing the manufacture of solar collectors by the mile, by the hundred miles? Make them cheap enough and everyone will buy and install them. Why is the Carter administration not digging coal by the millions of tons and offering incentive for the big users to change to that fuel? Pollution controls you say. Well, this is an emergency. Isn't it better to proceed by less than ideal means than to go down with no effort at all? There is wind power, there is hydrogen for fuel if enough development is done. Is the Carter administration interested in any positive solution? Or, do we punish the public and enrich the oil companies as our only contribution?

No one expects government to solve anything. No government ever came up with an original idea since time began. We do, however, expect government to encourage the implementation of ideas already here and help put these into production. I, for one, don't care if Began and Sadat ever hug again. Jimmy had his triumph. Now let him turn his attention to America. We need a matchmaker. Someone who can light a fire under the multi-international oil profiteers and make them sweat a little.

A friend asked me on Saturday, how is it that American Oil Company made unleaded Amoco gas for years at a price competitive with leaded gas? Now, Carter must rip off the public with a tilt scheme to provide the extra money it supposedly takes for American and the other oil companies to produce unleaded gas and search for new oil sources.

The answer may be that it is foolish to produce unleaded gas for the same price as leaded when the United States public will pay you extra. It is foolish to search for new oil fields when the old sources are paying unprecedented profits and the United

There seems to be a dual standard in Jimmy Carter's administration. The oil companies are encouraged with the offering of great reward. The United States public, on the other hand, is encouraged by the offering of great punishment.

Although Wareham Fire Department and Rochester Ambulance Department came out as equals in this event it is hoped other such challenges will take place in this Tricentennial year and prove just which town, mother or a daughter, is the best athlete.

The cast includes Jose Andrews in the lead as Johnny Williams; Manny DeSilva, Barry Smith, Joanne dePina, Elizabeth O'Gara, Jeanne White, Donald Reid, Susan Sessler, Carol Robinson, Elerick Kelly, Victor Duphily, Ralph Moniz, Jerry McCarthy, Randy Walters, and Richard Rogers.
